GOOD NEWS FOR HOMEMAKERS

Summertime living isn't all that easy not if you're responsible for the family laundry. You can expect ice cream and soft drinks stains on Dad's slacks, jelly-making stains on your favorite apron, and lurid spots of catsup and mustard from the last picnic on your tablecloth. Short of encasing your household in plastic, there's no way to avoid stains. But you can reduce damage with immediate action and a little knowledge.

Whenever possible, go after that stain right away—before it dries. The longer a stain remains on a fabric, the more chance it has to penetrate the fibers. (The exception is mud, which should be allowed to dry.) Before you apply any stain remover, test it first on an inside seam or other inconspicuous spot. Place your fabric, stained side down, on an absorbant pad (such as an old towel). With a clean, soft cloth in hand, work from the center of the stain toward the outer edge, using light brushing strokes. Change the pad as soon as it becomes soiled to avoid replacing the stain. After treating the stain, machine - or handwash the garment.

Here are specific solutions to some familiar summertime stain: CATSUP: Scrape off excess. Sponge stain promptly with cool water. Or, soak fabric in cold water for 30 minutes or more. Some stains may need to be soaked overnight. After sponging or soaking, work liquid detergent paste (dry detergent mixed with a small amount of water) into the stain and rinse. If stain remains, you will have to use a bleach.

CHEWING GUM: Apply an ice cube to harden gum, then scrape off as much as possible with a dull knife. Sponge affected area with cleaning fluid, repeating applications as necessary. If a sugar stain remains, sponge with water.

CHOCOLATE: Treat stain with cool water and detergent. Rinse spot throughly and let dry, then sponge remaining greasy portion with cleaning fluid. A bleach is sometimes necessary to remove all traces of the stain.

FRUITS AND BERRIES: Always sponge fresh stains promptly with cool water before they have time to set in. Some stains, such as those from citrus fruits, are invisible when dry and turn yellow with age or in the presence of heat. In that state they are difficult to remove. Where boiling water can be used, stretch stained portion of fabric over a bowl and pour boiling water through it. If stain remains, sponge with lemon juice solution or hydrogen peroxide. Where boiling water cannot be used, sponge stain well with cool water. Work glycerine into spot and let stand for several hours. Then add a few drops of white vinegar, rinse thoroughly and launder.

GRASS, FLOWERS, AND DANDELIONS: Sponging with rubbing alcohol will remove most plant stains from washable and nonwashable fabrics. Dilute with two parts water for acetate and always pretest with colors to see if they are affected. Or, work liquid detergent into the stain and rinse. Launder, using a bleach safe for that particular fabric.

ICE CREAM, MILK: Sponge or soak in cold water. Rub detergent into the spot and launder. Remove any grease with cleaning fluid. If stain persists, bleach according to fiber content.

MUD: Let dry, then rub with a stiff brush. Sponge in cool water, then launder in hot water. If stain remains, sponge with rubbing alcohol.

MUSTARD: With washable fabrics, apply liquid detergent to dampened stain and rinse. If stain is stubborn, place article in hot detergent solution and let stand for several hours or overnight. If results are still not satisfactory, use bleach. Mustard stains are practically impossible to remove from plastic materials.

PERSPIRATION: Always wash or sponge off immediately with warm water containing detergent. If colors have been affected, sponge fresh stain with ammonia; an old stain with vinegar. Rinse carefully with water. If oily traces remain when fabric is dried, sponge with cleaning fluid. Yellow stains that remain after detergent treatment may require use of bleach.

SMOKE AND SOOT: Back yard barbecues can play hob with your picnic cloth and clothes. If the material is washable, apply a liquid detergent directly to the stain. When outline disappears, rinse throughly. Repeat as often as necessary. Sometimes it's helpful to let the fabric dry between treatments. An absorbant powder, such as cornmeal, cornstarch, or talcum, is also effective.

SOFT DRINKS: Sponge immediately with cool water, then launder. Some soft-drink stains are invisible after they dry, but turn yellow with age or exposure to heat. This yellow stain is impossible to remove.

New Park Superintendent Assumed Duty

Environmental Program Specialist. In 1970 he became the superintendent of Wolf Trap Farm Park in Vienna under the Office of National Capital Parks, Washington, D. C., followed by an assignment as a supervisory park ranger at the Blue Ridge Parkway, Virginia Unit, Ashville, North Carolina, in 1972 prior to his appointment to Appomattox.

Lusk succeeds the late Robert R. Madden who died of cancer on March 11, 1974. Ray Godsey had been serving as Acting Superintendent.

A native of Oakland, New Jersey, Lusk was graduated from Ramapo Regional High School, Franklin Lakes, N. J. in 1961 and received a Bachelor of Arts Degree in History in 1965 from Gettysburg College, Gettysburg, Pa.

Lusk's wife, Mildred, is a skilled pottery maker using the hand-thrown wheel method. She is presently attending Alfred University in Alfred, New York where she is taking a six-week course in wheel-thrown pottery. Mildred will be interested in continuing in this line of work. She will join her husband in Appomattox on or before September 1st.

I'm, looking forward to the new and challenging assignment in Appomattox," Lusk says. "It will give me an opportunity to use my historical background in the management of a National Park Service unit." He adds that they are used to living in small communities and enjoy the small town atmosphere and are looking forward to being a part of the Appomattox community. He is looking forward to meeting neighbors and various individuals in the town and county of Appomattox and getting to know them personally.

Aged, Disabled Special Benefits

–have savings of less than $1500 if single, or less than $2250 for a married couple.

–own no house or a house valued at less than $25,000.

Those who work and also receive retirement benefits can qualify to receive SSI, but the amount would be worked out on a case-by case basis.

The aim of the SSI program is to provide a basic cash income of at least $146 a month for one person and $219 a month for a married couple. "This does not mean that everybody who is eligible will get payments in these amounts," HEW Secretary Casper W. Weinberger explained. "Some people will get less because they have other income coming in. Others may get more because the States in which they live are adding to the Federal payment."

Even though the SSI program is run by the Social Security Administration, SSI is not the same as Social Security. SSI payments come from general funds; Social Security benefits are paid from contributions of workers, employers, and self-employed people. A person can get both Social Security and Supplemental Security Income payments if he is eligible for both programs.

Persons seeking more information about SSI may call the Social Security District office in Lynchburg, 847-8856 or the SSI Alert office at Lynchburg College, 845-9071, Ext. 333. A twenty-four hour answering service is available. The Central Virginia Planning District SSI Alert will continue through August.

In the Appomattox County area, persons who need more information about this program can contact Mrs. Alice Folks, Appomattox County Department of Social Services, 352-7125.

In each state, the SSI Alert is co-ordinated through the state agency on aging and is run locally by a consortium of voluntary organizations. Other organizations whose local chapters are involved in the Alert are the National Council on Aging, National Council of Senior Citizens, American Association of Retired Persons, National Retired Teachers Association National Caucus on the Black Aged, National Association of Retired Federal Employees, and the American Red Cross.

If you drive past the exit you wanted, don't try backing up. Proceed to the next exit and circle around. The few extra minutes spent could well save a life.

Sheriff's Grant

CVPDC in the regional goals setting program.

The CVPDC is working jointly with the City of Lynchburg, the Greater Lynchburg Chamber of Commerce and the Consortium of Colleges in establishing goals and priorities for the District.

Commissioners gave unanimous approval to the proposed Central Virginia Action Plan for Programs on Aging. The plan must now be submitted to the Division of State Planning and Community Affairs for its approval.

A technical study grant of $20,000 in federal funds has been awarded to the Central Virginia Planning District Commission by the Urban Mass Transportation Aamistration (UMTA), announces by Congressman Caldwell Butler last week.

The grant will permit the development of proce ires for annual update of the Lynchburg area short-range Transit Development Program to insure that the area maintains its eligibility for Federal Capital Grants; the preparation of a Special Transporation Needs Plan for the Planning District; and updating of the District's Unified Transportation Work Program.

According to William F. Overacre, Commission Chairman, "A recently completed short-range transit study, sponsored by the city of Lynchburg, for the Lynchburg area, has produced a five-year Transit Development Program which must be updated annually. Funds from the grant will allow this updating process necessary to insure continued eligibility for federal money four transit facilities."

Hebron Church Celebrating

tent and beautiful country church, having many modern improvements such as inclined floors, class-rooms with sliding partitions, roof of metallic shingles, hard oil finish wood ceiling, et. The handsome stained glass memorial window is one of the striking features of the house. The building is a marvel of cheapness, having cost only about $1,400. What is a greater marvel, there was no collection yesterday to lift off a dept. The treasurer of the Building Committee, Mr. E. M. Taylor, state that money was on hand to pay every cent.

Hebron's Sunday School was organized in 1849 with Geo~ge S. Duiguid as superintendent. The classes assembled at 9 a.m. and lasted until noon with a 30 minutes recess. In addition to religious teachings, the school taught the alphabet, reading and spelling.

The Woman's Missionary Society, an integral organ of the church, was initially formed as the Ladies Aid Society in the early 1880's. In 1897 the society adopted its present name. In addition to doing service to frontier missionaries and local church work, the women purchased cloth for the pulpit which are still in use.

The WMS is also the fore runner for other women's groups including Business Woman's Circle, Girls Auxiliary, Royal Ambassadors and Sunbeams.

The anniversary will be celebrated with a special afternoon service at 2 with special music being by the Rocks Quartet Hebron Teen Choir.
